Moral Panics and the Copyright Wars

Contents

Acknowledgments xi
Disclaimer xiii
Introduction xv

CHAPTER 1 How the Copyright Wars Are Being Fought and Why 1
  The Copyright Wars and Business Models 2
  The Internet and Push versus Pull Marketing 5
  Appetite for Self-Destruction: The Record Industry's Failure to Offer an Alternative to Napster 8
  The Copyright Wars and the Great Cultural Revolution 10
  The Digital Guillotine 11
  The Copyright Wars and Framing 14
  The Copyright Wars and Piracy 15
  The Copyright Wars and Marketing Myopia 23
  Control as the Business Model 26
  Chicken Little and False Figures 30
  Copyright, Innovation, and Joseph Schumpeter's "Creative Destruction" 36
  The Copyright Wars as a Rearguard Effort to Stave Off Innovation 39

CHAPTER 2 The Role of Metaphors in Understanding 43
  Figurative Metaphors 44
  I.A. Richards and the Beginning of Conceptual Metaphors 45
  Max Black's Theory of Associated Commonplaces 46
  The Role of Repetition in Metaphors 47
  Conceptual Metaphors 49
  Metaphors and Emotion 52
  Emotions and Cognitive Misers 54

CHAPTER 3 Metaphors and the Law 57
  Ideas as Metaphors 58

CHAPTER 4 The Mythical Origins of Copyright and Three Favorite Copyright Metaphors 61
  The Mythical Origins of Copyright 61
  The Utilitarian/Consequentialist Origin Story 62
  Competition and IP Rights 63
  The Labor Origin Story 65
  Natural Rights and Geniuses 65
  Copyright Has Historically Been Unimportant to Authors 67
  Three Favorite Copyright Metaphors 69
  Authors as the Parents of their Works: The Birth Metaphor 69
  No Author Is an Island 71
  Copyright Is an Economic Commodity 75
  Orphan Works 76
  The Agrarian Metaphor: Reaping What You Haven't Sown 78
  Origins of the Metaphor 79
  Rejection of the Metaphor in the United States 83
  Forms of the Metaphor 84
  Thieves and Trespassers, Pirates and Parasites 86